AANN Chapters Outdo Themselves in Nashville, Gear Up for Las Vegas
AANN chapter support for the Neuroscience Nursing Foundation (NNF) Silent Auction reached new heights last year in Nashville, breaking a long-standing record for the number of participating chapters. In addition to being one of the focal points of the exhibit hall, the Silent Auction booth is always a great place to gather to learn about what other chapters are doing.

This year should be no different as the Foundation expects even greater support. Participating is simple; gather fun items such as food and toys that represent the chapter's location or the chapter itself. Many chapters have asked their members to bring items to the annual educational meeting and then purchase a basket once in Las Vegas to put the collection together as a fun group activity.

In addition, the ever-popular NeuroBoogie is back—only this year we will have the opportunity to learn how to do a bit of hip-hop dance. Bring your boogie “bling” for a chance to win door prizes and be prepared to have fun. Please remember that preregistration is required for this event.
